Hannah Hrank (1908-2008) was born in Glasgow and studied at the Glasgow School of Art and Glasgow University. Her drawings were originally produced as illustrations for the Glasgow University Magazine, the GUM. She used the pen-name "Al Aaraaf" for her early drawings. In the 1950s, she turned to sculpture. Her work has been exhibited in the Royal Scottish Academy, the Royal Glasgow Institute, and the Royal Academy, and toured internationally in the five years leading to her centenary exhibition at Glasgow University in 2008. In 2009 Hannah became the first person ever to receive a posthumous honorary doctorate from Glasgow University. Since her death in 2008 there has been continuing interest in her art, with new fans across the world and exhibitions all over the UK.
